

Air Products Wins Contract to Supply UMC's New Fab in Taiwan

September 25, 2012

LEHIGH VALLEY, Pa., Sept. 25, 2012 /PRNewswire via COMTEX/ --Air Products (NYSE:APD) today announced that its subsidiary in Taiwan, Air Products San Fu Co. Ltd., has been awarded a long-term contract with United Microelectronics Corporation (UMC) to provide nitrogen and other bulk gases to four new phases of UMC's Fab 12A complex in the Tainan Science Industrial Park (TSIP).

Air Products San Fu will build an air separation unit, pipelines and a bulk gas system to supply ultra-high purity (UHP) nitrogen and other bulk gases including oxygen, argon, helium and hydrogen to UMC's Phase Five to Phase Eight of their new 300mm wafer fab in one of Taiwan's largest science parks. The air separation unit is scheduled to be onstream in the second half of 2013.

The contract further strengthens Air Products' leading market position in TSIP where Air Products San Fu serves its customers through UHP bulk gas facilities and a pipeline that is fed by three of the world's largest UHP nitrogen facilities. Air Products San Fu has been supplying bulk gases to UMC's first four phases of Fab 12A via pipelines in the park.

"UMC is our long-standing strategic customer. We are very pleased to further expand our business relationship and support the continuous growth of its most advanced fab," said Wayne Mitchell, vice president and general manager of Electronics Division at Air Products. "The investment will reinforce our market position in the park and allow us to serve customers with increased reliability and flexibility to meet new volume demand in a quick and cost-effective way."

"We are happy to extend our relationship with Air Products for the next development stage of our Fab 12A complex. Air Products is a leading global industrial gas supplier with proven reliability and safety records. We look forward to the same success we now enjoy in our future cooperation," said Louis Hsieh, Director of UMC's Operations Support Division.

Air Products' customers in TSIP include major semiconductor and TFT-LCD manufacturers. UMC is the world's second largest foundry company and a leading 300mm wafer manufacturer.
